It all starts with FUN.

Playing soccer is optional, but we started playing and keep playing because it is fun. Without fun, nothing else works. It is the coach's job to ensure the players can enjoy being part of the team while staying focused, understanding strategy and formation, developing skills, and always embracing an admirable character of support for each other and the community on and off the pitch.

This dedication has so many advantages including: lifelong friendships, physical wellbeing, the excitement of winning, and the motivating power of defeat. My goal is to spread the spark of this beautiful game.

As a coach, I encourage a style of play that favors simple movement to enable short passing to maintain possession, quick bursts to disrupt turnovers, and developing mutual respect within the team (and even the opponent). This cultivates a culture of unity that inspires players to work for their teammates above themselves.

This supportive atmosphere ensures all players share the fun of every individual's success while standing together as a united force in times of need.

Sincerely,

S. Joshua Brincko
